PREFACE

In compliance with chapter 367, section 1, Acts of 1924, the Commission has compiled a record of citizens and residents of Massachusetts who died during the World War while in the military or naval service of the United States or of the Commonwealth; also in the services of the Allies, so far as could be recovered.

This record gives in as compact form as practicable the data which the act calls for, — namely, to establish the identity of the soldier, sailor or marine; to enable a reasonable estimate to be made of the service rendered; to give the service record, residence, birth-place, age at entry into the service, and names of nearest relatives.

The volume contains 5,771 individual service records, men and women. The basis of the compilation was the series of service records supplied to The Adjutant General of Massachusetts by the War Department. These military records give date of entry and discharge from the service and units to which attached, age, residence, next of kin or friend named by the soldier, wounds, overseas service, and "battles" in which he took part. In some cases other information appeared on these cards. However, the actual place of death, except in a few instances, was not stated.

Specimen service cards supplied by the War and Navy Departments are printed below.

PREFACE

To present the information required of the Commission in one volume of a size not too large for easy reference, the following arrangement was adopted:

Name, rank, date, place and cause of death; service record, giving organizations to which attached, with term of service in each; date of departure overseas; former service record, if any; date and place of birth; parentage; marriage and children; names of brothers and sisters; occupation or training; citations for gallant conduct, etc.; decorations. In every instance not otherwise stated it is understood that the grade was that of enlisted man below that of the lowest grade of non-commissioned or warrant officer.

In order to present this information in the least space, certain styles and sizes of type and certain easily understood abbreviations have been used.

The names of those who were killed in action or who died of wounds are preceded by a cross.

The record has been arranged alphabetically under cities and towns, grouped by counties. The table of contents gives the pages where the town or city lists appear. An alphabetical list of names of those whose records appear in this volume, with reference to the city or town under which the name occurs, is given on page 691. In many instances the same man has been claimed by different towns, but the Commission has attempted to determine the actual residence.

There are about 30,000 names in this volume, in addition to the 5,771 names in the record itself. To collect the information needed to comply with the specifications of the act has required a great deal of research and checking of information, often contradictory, obtained from various sources.

Efforts were made to get information from near relatives covering facts it was desired to use, as well as other data to be placed in the files of the Commission for further record.

About 5,000 questionnaires were distributed, but reports were received in only about 40 per cent of the cases. A copy of the questionnaire is inserted herewith: —

GOLD STAR RECORD OF MASSACHUSETTS IN THE WORLD WAR.

AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE COMPILATION OF A RECORD OF THE MASSACHUSETTS MEN WHO DIED IN THE MILITARY OR NAVAL SERVICE DURING THE WORLD WAR.

“The special commission to provide for the preparation of a suitable history of Massachusetts’ part in the World War, established under authority of chapter four hundred and eight of the acts of nineteen hundred and twenty-three, is hereby directed to compile an appropriate record of Massachusetts men who died during the World War while in the military or naval service of the United States of America or of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts or in the military or naval forces of any foreign power associated with the United States of America in the World War. Said Record shall be known as The Gold Star Record of Massachusetts in the World War. It shall be in sufficient detail to establish the identity of each such deceased soldier, sailor or marine, and to enable a reasonable estimate to be made of the service rendered by him to the Commonwealth, and shall set forth among other things his service record, residence, birthplace, age of entry into service and his nearest relatives. The manuscript for said report shall be completed on or before July 1, 1926.” (Chapter 367, Section 1, Acts 1924.)

Please return this questionnaire as soon as possible to Commission on History of Massachusetts in the World War, Room 532, STATE HOUSE, Boston.

It is very important that this questionnaire be returned at as early a date as possible.

The files of the Treasurer and Receiver-General of the Commonwealth, showing applications for the gratuity granted Massachusetts men in the service who had complied with certain requirements and who resided in the state during the six months preceding entry into the service, supplied invaluable information.

The current news items published during the war, various town, school and other rolls, and data received from interested persons, were additional sources of information.

Following the compilation of the record based on the sources already mentioned, the vital records in possession of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in some instances the town records of other states, were consulted.

A great many instances were found where men, notwithstanding they were Massachusetts men, were not credited by the War Department to our Commonwealth. This arose from the fact that Massachusetts men often enlisted in other states. For instance, a resident of North Adams may have been accepted for service there but enlisted at some army post in another state; or, because he did not give his true residence, credit was given to the state in which the post was situated. Thus Massachusetts men were credited to New York, to Vermont, or to the District of Columbia. In some cases men claimed residence in the state where they enlisted, or in some other than their home state, even though they had but recently left Massachusetts to seek temporary employment, and were still assessed in their home town and their names listed by the local draft board.

Every instance which has come to the notice of the Commission has been investigated. After the record was in type proof sheets covering each town were sent to the town clerk of that town and to Adjutants or Commanders of American Legion Posts, and other veteran organizations, and to other interested persons, in order that opportunity might be given for revision. Several newspapers printed the complete lists of names and records for their localities. All of this was of help to the Commission.

There will be found omissions in this record of names of men appearing on honor rolls of some Massachusetts towns. These instances, almost invariably, were of men who actually had become citizens of some other state, or whose absence from Massachusetts had been of such long duration that other states had unquestionably obtained the right to claim credit for their service. There have been, however, a number of names added to the credit of Massachusetts, the result of the work of the Commission.

To locate, even approximately, the place of death was a matter of no little difficulty. Various sources of information were used. In many instances the parents of the soldier exhibited letters from company commanders or comrades in service who related the exact circumstances under which death occurred. The Red Cross records also were used. Lacking other information it was assumed, if a man was killed in action or mortally wounded on a date on which his organization was known to have been in a certain position, that his death occurred at or near that place. Thus if a man is reported killed in action on the day it is known his company was in Belleau Wood or attacking Vaux, he is said in the record to have died there, not merely in the Château-Thierry Sector, although actually he may have lived to reach a first-aid post or field hospital. Mistakes will, of course, be found. The enclosure within brackets of the name of the place where death is reported indicates that the information is not only unofficial, but is a deduction from the data available. Names of men concerning whose death official confirmation could not be obtained are also placed in brackets.

The work of identification of place of death was largely performed by Capt. Sidney A. Cook and Mr. Herbert L. Kuhn, both former members of the 26th Division. Any questionable instance was determined by the editor of the record.

Difficulties were frequently encountered in identifying the family affiliation of the soldier or sailor, requiring genealogical investigation. As a rule, the identification was performed by Mr. John Elliot Bowman, a genealogist of long experience, assisted by Mr. Kuhn, and here again the many difficult problems of identity were submitted to the editor.

In the absence of confirmatory data from relatives, it has not been possible to satisfactorily identify the family affiliation of all persons named in the record. In many cases it seemed better to omit what might be erroneous information, however circumstantial the evidence. Notwithstanding the care exercised in this matter, it is to be expected that some instances of mistaken identification occur, due in part to the fact that even the records of birth and marriage frequently err regarding baptismal names. This especially is the case with names of foreign-born parents.

Unless otherwise noted, it is to be understood that the place of residence of parents of the soldier or sailor is the town under which the man's record is found. Where no other definite information could be obtained, the source of information is usually the application for the gratuity granted by the Commonwealth.

All whose place or country of birth is not specified are to be understood as having been born in Massachusetts unless the context shows otherwise, but this rule does not always hold true in the case of mothers where the father was native born, or to nativity of brothers and sisters. Overseas deaths are in France unless another country is named.

It is needless to state that the necessities of the abbreviated form of the record have required an arbitrary rule regarding punctuation and capitalization.

Finally, in order to condense the record as far as practicable, the names of the offensive and defensive operations (each of which covered a large area) with which the man was credited on the service card supplied by the War Department have been omitted under the individual records. By reference to Volume I of the Report of the Commission, under the various organization histories, information will be found regarding the activities of those organizations, and between certain dates, thus enabling one to learn in what operations the man participated.

The record of Massachusetts made by her sons in this war is one to be proud of. This Gold Star Record is but a slight testimonial of the regard of the Commonwealth for the sacrifices of those who died in the service.

A study of the data obtained by the Commission in the progress of this work supplies the following general information:

Deaths in American forces, 5,288, as follows: Army, 4,427, exclusive of 20 nurses and Ambulance Service, 2; Navy, 654; Marines, 152; yeomen (F), 8; Coast Guard, 25; Canadian forces, 325; British, 116; Australian, 3; New Zealand, 1; French, 10; Polish, 2; Russian, 3; Belgian, 1; Italian, 6; total, 5,755. To this total should be added the names in the Supplementary List on page 687.

It is found that 3,379 of those whose records appear in this roll were natives of Massachusetts, 441 were born in other New England States, and 384 in other parts of the United States; Hawaii, 1; Philippine Islands, 2; Canada, including Newfoundland, 280; British West Indies, 3; Great Britain, 160; Ireland, 165; Italy, 179; France, 10; Sweden, 25; Norway, 2; Denmark, 7; Poland, 45; Lithuania, 36; other Baltic states, 8; Ukraine, 2; Russia, including provinces now independent, but which could not be identified, 91; Turkey, including Syria and Armenia, 29; Portugal, including Azores and Western Islands, 25; Germany, 10; Bulgaria, 1; Austria, 18; Holland, 3; Belgium, 2; Greece, 44; Spain, 1; Mexico, 1; Cuba, 1; Brazil, 2; Africa, 2; Japan, 1. The birthplace of 422 men was doubtful or unknown at the time this count was made, the larger proportion of whom would probably fall under the general head "American."

The fact that their own people and relatives were engaged in a life and death struggle was unquestionably a factor in the large number of voluntary enlistments of foreign-born in our forces, especially of men who might have claimed exemption from the draft. Nevertheless, the very fact that they did serve with our colors, even under the handicap of often imperfect understanding of the English language, speaks for itself.

The Commission has tried to give as much information regarding the foreign-born dead as of our native-born. Sources of information have, of course, been more scanty, but pains have not been spared.

In reporting the causes of death other than battle death, all deaths attributed in the official records to disease have been so stated without specifying the disease, although a very large proportion of the deaths from disease overseas were directly or indirectly gas casualties.

Thus it is found that 2,717 men were killed in action or died of wounds received in action; 894 died overseas of disease; 176 died overseas by reason of accidental injuries or drowning; 10 died overseas from causes not listed above; 49 died at sea of disease, and 10 died at sea from accidental causes; 21 were lost at sea; and in the United States, including the Canal Zone, and home possessions, 205 died from accidents including drowning, 1,683 died of disease, and 6 from causes not listed above.

In many instances names of men for whom streets or squares have been named will not be found in this record, for the reason that they died after discharge or were not at time of entry into service actual citizens of Massachusetts. Men who died after separation from the service, or release from active duty by the Navy, are not included in the record. Names of men who are known to have died from disability incurred in the service, and whose death took place within sixty days after discharge, have been placed in a supplementary list, in which also are the records of a number of men who seem to be entitled to a place in our record, although technically credited to other states; but this record is far from complete, and it is reserved for future publication.

Massachusetts men who died in the Canadian or Allied services are included in our record. This roll is incomplete. It is estimated that at least seven hundred Massachusetts men died while serving with the Canadian forces, but the names of at least half of these have not been recovered, in spite of earnest inquiry. Had this compilation been begun during or immediately after the war the result would have been more satisfactory.

Any compilation of this character is necessarily incomplete. It is hoped that corrections and additions will be immediately made known to the Commission, to be entered upon an interleaved copy of the record which will be maintained in the office of the chairman of the Commission.

In closing, the Commission desires to express its appreciation of the services of Miss Anna V. Martin, whose duties have been manifold, as well as of all who have been concerned, either as regular or temporary assistants on full or part time.

This record is the most complete yet published, and should serve more purposes than a testimonial to the memory of those who gave their lives for their country.

Awarded D. S. C.: "For extraordinary heroism in action at Varsenaere, Belgium, 13 Aug., 1918. Leading a low bombing attack on German aerodrome thirty miles behind the lines, he destroyed the hangars on the north side of the aerodrome, and then attacked a row of enemy machines flying as low as twenty feet from the ground, despite intense machine-gun fire, setting fire to three German planes. He then turned and fired bursts through the windows of the chateau in which the German pilots were quartered, twenty-six of whom were afterwards killed."

Also received Distinguished Flying Cross [describing same attack as above]: "He dropped four bombs from two hundred feet on some aeroplane hangars, making two direct hits and causing a large amount of damage. He then machine-gunned the German officers' billets, and made four circuits of the aerodrome. . . . On the first circuit he destroyed one enemy aeroplane on the ground, which burst into flames. . . . On the third circuit he repeated this performance, setting on fire another Fokker biplane. His dash and skill very materially helped in the success of the operations. . . . In addition this officer destroyed a Fokker biplane over Armentières on Aug. 7, 1918. On July 12, 1918, he brought down two enemy aeroplanes in flames and on two other occasions he has driven out of control enemy machines. He is an excellent patrol leader."

- † Baylies, Frank Leaman, Sergeant, Stork Escadrille, Lafayette Flying Corps, French forces: killed in action 17 June, 1918, near Rellet (Somme).
Enl. 21 May, 1917, French Aviation Corps, having served in American Ambulance Corps since Feb., 1916, — on the Somme, at Verdun, and in the Argonne; also for three months in Monastir sector, Serbia, where he was cited, 25 March, 1917, for "perfect devotion and fearlessness" in evacuating wounded under bombardment, and was given Croix de Guerre with palm. "One of the most famous of the Stork Pursuit Squadron," serving at Dunkirk, Verdun, and in the Champagne sector. At his death he had been officially credited with victory over eleven planes, and it is said that in reality he had been a victor more than twenty times. He was tendered a commission as 2d Lieut. in Aviation Section, U. S. Army, but preferred to remain in Lafayette Flying Corps.
Born 23 Sept., 1895, at New Bedford, son of Charles Swasey and Lydia Terry (Paige) Baylies of New Bedford; brother of Emily Baylies. Moses Brown School, Providence, R. I. Square in New Bedford named in his memory. Bronze tablet placed in Jireh Swift School, New Bedford, in his memory: "At the time of death, Sergt. Baylies had been proposed for Legion of Honor and 2d Lieutenancy in French Aviation Corps."
Medaille Militaire.
Croix de Guerre with six palms and star.
French Citation: "Frank Baylies, an American volunteer in the Automobile Sanitary Section
No. 3, twice volunteered duty at the front, and then for the Army of the Orient. He placed at the service of wounded men perfect devotion and fearlessness, being daily tested under bombardment. From Dec. 19, 1916, to March 27, 1917, during the evacuation of wounded from the Monastir sector, he exhibited contempt for the bombardment of cities, roads and cantonnments."
Order dated March 9, 1918: "Frank Baylies, an American citizen, enlisted in the French Army before the United States declared war. He passed at his own request into chasing aviation, in which he displayed the very finest enthusiasm. On Feb. 18 he shot down single-handed an enemy aeroplane, which crashed within our lines."
Order dated May 6, 1918: "An excellent chasing pilot; refused to enter American Aviation as an officer, not wishing to leave his French squadron; delivers daily combats; has destroyed alone his second enemy aeroplane."
After his sixth official victory he was cited by the French as: "A chasing pilot of the highest class, who always seeks combat and leads marvellously the patrol of which he is chief. On April 12 he destroyed alone his fifth enemy aeroplane, and the following day he gained his sixth victory."
Order dated May 29, 1918: "Frank Baylies is a brilliant, high-class chasing pilot. On May 9 and 10 he destroyed his seventh and eighth German aeroplanes."

D. S. C. and Navy Cross: "For extraordinary heroism in action in Bois de Belleau, June 11, 1918, and near Vierzy, France, July 18, 1918. In the Bois de Belleau, when all the officers of his company had become casualties, he displayed marked heroism in leading his men forward in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, assisting in the capture of many machine-guns. Near Vierzy he fearlessly exposed himself to enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, directing personally the reduction of strong points. He was killed at the head of his men while leading an advance."

Croix de Guerre with gilt star: "At Vierzy on July 18, 1918, he assembled the elements of different companies and led them forward during the attack. Was killed during the action."

Cited in G. O. 88: "Displayed unusual heroism, courage, coolness and utter disregard of personal danger under trying circumstances, northeast of Vierzy on July 18, 1918. During the second attack launched against the enemy by the second battalion, and while Captain Wass was personally directing the reduction of a machine gun nest, fearlessly exposed himself to its deadly fire, six friendly tanks which had been supporting the French on our left returned through our lines bringing with them a murderous concentration of artillery fire. Controlled, as it was, by a low flying aeroplane this fire soon destroyed four of the six tanks. With the most wonderful nonchalance, and utter disregard of the bursting shells surrounding him, Captain Wass went along his battle torn line calming the excited, and reassuring the faint heart. By his superb bravery he kept his line intact, and moved toward the enemy with a cane swinging easily in his hand."

G. O. 53: "He collected the remnants of all companies about him under heavy fire, and led them forward against the enemy at the cost of his own life."

G. O. 88: "This officer alone left of the officers of his company, with extraordinary heroism led his men forward in the face of heavy machine gun fire and assisted in capturing many machine guns. His courage was at all times an example for his men. This officer was killed later in the Soissons drive."

G. O. 44: "Conspicuous for his bravery and holding qualities, especially during the period from the 7th to the 16th of June, 1918, when after the loss of two of its commanders, he was placed in command of a company which held an important position, and discharged his duties with good judgment and extraordinary heroism."

Silver Star Citation 3 June, 1919: "For gallantry in action near Courmont, France, 4 Oct., 1918, in burying the dead under heavy shell fire."
Cited in G. O. No. 26, 20 Nov., 1918: "For faithful and conscientious performance of duty and for extreme coolness under shell fire in the performance of his duty as Chief Burial Officer, 5th Corps, during the Meuse-Argonne operations."
Croix de Guerre with palm: "During the advance from the Ourcq to the Vesle from July 31 to Aug. 6, 1918, he carried out his duties heedless of danger and without interruption under a violent fire. By his comforting words and his fine example of abnegation and bravery he encouraged the men of his regiment who were advancing to the assault."
Recommended for D. S. C.: "During the advance from Courmont to Mount St. Martin, Chaplain Davitt worked single-handed without ceasing for anything, collecting the dead of his Division (32d) and looking after the burial. He did this under violent fire, to which he apparently paid no attention. While doing this work he stopped to encourage with cheerful words and advice the enlisted men along the line who also were under fire. The results of his work were 125 American soldiers buried, many wounded cared for, and soldiers in the line encouraged."
Cited for bravery August 6, 1918, during operations along the Vesle River: "To rescue 40 wounded soldiers who were temporarily isolated from their command, he led a party of volunteers through a hail of machine gun bullets. All were rescued and returned to their command without the loss of a single man."
Cited for bravery Oct. 20, 1918, during the Argonne offensive: "To rescue three wounded soldiers, he leaped over the top of the trench, and, under enemy machine-gun fire, dragged them to safety one by one."
Name appears on Memorial Tablet, State House.

Congressional Medal of Honor of the Navy: "For exceptionally meritorious service and extraordinary heroism while attached to Squadron C, first Marine Aviation force in France. He participated in numerous air raids into enemy territory, and on October 8, 1918, while on such a raid, he was attacked by nine enemy scouts, and in the fight that followed, shot down an enemy plane. Also, on October 14, 1918, while on an air raid over Pittham, Belgium, Lieutenant Talbot and one other plane became detached from the formation due to loss of power by motor, and were attacked by twelve enemy scouts. During the severe fight that followed his plane shot down one of the enemy scouts. His observer was shot through the elbow and his gun jammed. He cleared the jam with one hand while Lieutenant Talbot maneuvered to gain time, and then returned to fight. The observer fought on until shot twice in the stomach and once in the hip. When he collapsed, Lieutenant Talbot attacked the nearest enemy scout with his front guns and shot him down. With his observer unconscious and his motor failing he dived to escape the balance of the enemy and crossed the German trenches at an altitude of fifty feet, landed at the nearest hospital, and left his observer and returned alone to his aerodrome."

Amory, died in service during the Civil War. Graduated from Virginia Military Institute, 1916.

D. S. C.: "For extraordinary heroism in action near Verdun, Oct. 2, 1918. Lieutenant Amory took out a patrol of 64 men, penetrating the enemy lines for the purpose of reconnoitering terrain over which an advance was to be made on the following morning. When his patrol was fired on by machine guns from all sides this officer led three of his men forward to clear the machine-gun nests, placing the rest of his men under cover. He succeeded in overcoming one of these nests and killing the crew, but as he was advancing on another gun, located in a house about 10 yards away, he was killed by a machine gun bullet, his last words being, "We'll take that nest or die trying."

Silver Star with citation, 36th French Div. (then Corporal, 156th Sq., French A. S.): "Taking part in combat patrol, he attacked a group of enemy planes and brought down one."

Palm with citation (then Sergeant, 38th Sq., French A. S.): "Combat pilot of the first order; on 5 June, 1918, attacking a patrol of ten enemy airplanes, he brought down one while four others were forced to descend out of control, and routed the balance of the enemy patrol."

Palm awarded: "On 15 June he brought down his eighth enemy airplane. In the course of this fight, attacking a patrol of five enemy airplanes he accompanied them to less than 1,500 metres from their lines, and returning he brought down in flames a drachen which was his ninth victory."

Palm awarded: "Taking part in a patrol 19 Jan., 1918, he attacked two enemy airplanes and followed them at a low altitude into their own lines, bringing down one which fell in flames."

Palm awarded (then Sergeant, 156th Sq., French A. S.): "Adroit and audacious pilot who was always looking for a fight. He attacked two enemy planes and brought down one in view of our trenches."

D. S. C.: "For extraordinary heroism in action near La Chaussee 12 Sept., 1918. After destroying one of eight German planes which had attacked him, he was turning to our lines when he saw seven Fokkers attack an allied biplane. He attacked the Germans and saved the biplane, but was himself driven down, shot through the heart."

Chevalier, Legion of Honor, by Presidential Decree 11 Nov., 1918, and awarded Croix de Guerre with five palms and silver star: "An admirably zealous pilot of exemplary endurance, willingness and courage. In the squadron only six months, he immediately revealed himself an exceptional pilot of unequalled skill and competence. Indefatigable, he sought every occasion to fight, and carried his boldness to temerity, going to attack the enemy as far as twenty kilometres within his lines. In less than a month he shot down six enemy airplanes (officially recorded) increasing the number of his victories to nine. Already cited four times in orders."

- ✠ McGourty, James Anthony, Machinist (prov.), N. R. F.: died 11 April, 1918, when "Lake Moor" was torpedoed.
Appointed 27 Dec., 1917, Machinist (prov.); assigned to duty in connection with "Lake Moor," and on board when placed in commission, New York City.
Born 15 March, 1897, at Worcester, son of Frank J. (born in Ireland, died 1918) and Mary F. (Nooan) McGourty; brother of Frances Lucille. Student, Massachusetts Nautical School.
"It was on his second trip across when out of the darkness of the April night a German torpedo crashed through the U. S. S. 'Lake Moor.' The vessel was doomed, but still it plunged on. 'Abandon ship!' came the Captain's order, but who could launch a lifeboat with the propellers madly churning the sea? An officer called for volunteers to go to the engine room and shut off steam. There was a moment of silence. The men huddled together and hid their faces, for every hatchway was a scalding kettle. Then some one ran forward and cried, 'I'll try it, sir!' No one has ever known how, but it was done. And some moments later, when the last lifeboat had cleared the scene, they passed his name about in lowered voices, as a thing of wonder."
